Pectoral, in the earlier stages of throat and lung diseases, is highly important. Every hour's delay is dangerous, and may prove fatal. E. G. Reynolds, druggist, Dixfield, Me., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a wonderful remedy. In the fall of 1875 I was taken with a sudden Cold, accompanied with a terrible Cough. I suffered for three months, grew worse all the time, and was threatened with Consumption.

was recommended to me by a neighbor, and had a favorable effect at once. I continued its use until five or six bottles had been taken, when I was completely cured." Dr. Chambers S. Penn, Rarden, Scioto Co., Ohio, writes: "My wife was afflicted with a violent Cough, accompanied with Bleeding. Remedies usually prescribed in such cases failing, I resolved to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which, I am satisfied, saved her from Pulmonary Consumption."

"At even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning."] It may be in the evening, When the work of the day is done. And you have time to sit in the twilight And watch the sinking sun, While the long bright day dies slowly

Over the sea. And the hour grows quiet and holy, With thoughts of me; While you hear the village children

Passing along the street, Among those thronging footsteps May come the sound of my feet; Therefore I tell you: Watch By the light of the evening star, When the room is growing dusky As the clouds afar;

Let the door be on the latch In your home, For it may be through the gloaming I will come!

It may be when the midnight Is heavy upon the land, And the black waves lie dumbly Along the sand; When the moonloss night draws close, And the lights are out in the house, When the fire burns low and red, And the watch is ticking loudly

Beside the bed; Though you sleep, tired out, on your couch, Still your heart must wake and watch In the dark room, For it may be at midnight

I will come. It may be at the cock crow, Wh n the night is dying slowly

In the sky, And the sea looks calm and holy, Waiting for the dawn Of the golden sun Which draweth nigh, When the mists are on the valleys, shading

And the morning star is fading, fading Over the hill: Behold! I say unto you, Wat h! Let the door be on the latch In your home, In the chill before the dawning,

Between the night and morning I may come. It may be in the morning When the sun is bright and strong, And the daw is glittering sharply When the waves are laughing loudly Along the shore, And the birds are singing sweetly

About the door: With long day's work before you, You rise up with the sun, And the neighbors come in to talk a little Of all that must be done;

But remember that I may be the next To come in at the door, To call you from all your busy work For evermore; As you work, our hearts must watch

For the door is on the latch In your room, And it may be in the morning I will come!

AN EXPENSIVE FAILURE. Rabbits Demoralizing an Early Texas

Colony. Some of the early immigrants of Texas must have been of a very peculiar stock, to judge from the experience of a certain colony foun ded in the old Spanish times. According to Hubert Howe Bancroft's History the Spanish commander Aguayo had submitted to the King a plan for a settlement at the presidio of San Antonio, which was favorably received and acted upon by the government. In February, 1729, a royal cedula was issued, providing that every vessel from Spain clearing for Havana should take ten or twelve families from the Canary Islands to the latter place, thence to be re-shipped to Texas, where the king would maintain them for one year. In 1730 fifteen families arrived, who were joined by a like number ers and the Indians about lands and water rights, the governor made a tion of the colonists. ### The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make mis-takes, and the unanimous voice of praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine.
